Surprisingly Reasonable!

It does not follow that you have to buy the highest-priced piano to get a really high-grade instrument.

If care is taken in the selection, you can secure an instrument that will more than fulfill every home requirement at a remarkably reasonable cost.

After hearing the Howard Piano and appreciating its absolute durability, you would naturally expect it to be among the costly ones, but it is not.

Considering value with price it is positively the most economical instrument for the home.

It gives you all the qualities of the high-grade instruments at so reasonable a price because it is a product of one of the manufacturing companies of the greatest piano organization in the world—The Baldwin Company.

No other instrument of equal quality can be sold at the price because no other makers possess the facilities and resources.

THE "Howard Manual", the Player Piano that is all but human, is distinguished by Quality, Durability, Reliability and Attractive Price. It is a quality proposition throughout. Be sure to examine it.

Mr. R. L. Neubert, of the Adams & Neubert, told a representative of the Messenger Saturday night that his firm had shipped 20 more cars of hay to date this season than to the same date last year, and that they now have in storage 160 car loads. This is some hay. Think of 4 train loads of hay stored beside the tracks in this city.

Note the difference between this fall and last—plenty of something to eat, a little cotton and a good price—next to nothing to eat, lots of cotton and a low price. Do you want to go back to the conditions of last fall? You can do so in one season if you wish, provide the devil will let you make the motion.

We are not a prophet or the son of a prophet, but we are willing to stake our reputation along this line on the assertion "This community will not average over 100 pounds of seed cotton to the acre next year, if it is a seasonable winter and if it stays in the ground June."

Don't go in debt to grow cotton, it is dangerous under present conditions. You may lose your home by the experiment. Others have done this very thing.

Habits.

Habit may be either a strong help past peril, or a fetter that holds its victim helpless. Some young people never consider habit forming at all; it is not taken into account in their lives. They form none but accidental and unconscious ones. If asked what their fixed habits are, they will laugh at the question. They know so little about it that they think they could change any habit they have in a day. Yet in reality they are binding themselves in chains of iron and making a free and happy life impossible for themselves later on.—Selected.

COLD PROPER CURE FOR COLD

English Writer Asserts That People Do Not Understand Treatment of Common Infection.

Doctor Johnson, knowing nothing of microbes, thought he had crushed the story of the cold that strangers bring to St. Kilda by asking: "How can there be a physical effect without a physical cause?" Then he proceeded to make merry. The arrival of a ship full of strangers, he laughingly supposed, would kill the inhabitants of the island; "for, if one stranger gives them one cold, two strangers must give them two colds, and so in proportion." In vain, says the London Chronicle, did believers in the story argue that it was annually proved upon the arrival of the owner's steward, which always resulted in a cold for all the islanders. "The steward," replied Johnson, "always comes to demand something from them, and so they fall a-coughing."

The proper cure for a cold, which always seems to have baffled the doctors, is—cold—on the principle of homeopathy. The only sailors in the Crimean days who escaped sore throats were those who could not get muffled. The members of the Scott expedition never got a "cold" until they had left the frozen Antarctic and reached civilization. We should establish the refrigerating chamber as antiphon to the Turkish bath for cure of colds.

WISDOM IN MOTHER'S WORDS

After All, Neatness Cannot Be Considered the Greatest Necessity of the Home.

A lady received the following reply from a neighbor in answer to a question as to why she allowed her children and her husband to litter up every room in the house. The sentiment will find lodgment in the heart of every home-loving person in the land: "The marks of little, muddy feet upon the floor can be more easily removed than the stains where the little feet go into the highways of sin. The prints of the little fingers upon the window panes cannot shut out the sunshine half so much as the shadow that darkens the mother's heart over the one who will be but a name in the coming year. And if my John finds home a refuge from care and his greatest happiness within its four walls, he can put his boots in the rocking chair and hang his hat on the floor any day in the week. And if I can stand it and he enjoys it, I cannot see that it is anybody's business."—Nicholas.

THE TIME.

"There will soon be a mad dog epidemic in the country."
"Why will there?"
"They are trying out the new plays."

RAISED BY MACHINERY.

"A mechanical age, truly."
"How now?"
"I just saw an incubator baby being lulled to sleep by a graphophone."

AND ONE OVER.

"Papa, what does it mean when it says the markets are glutted with fruit?"
"So far as I am concerned, son, two grapefruits make a glut."

RETORT DISCOURTEOUS.

Mrs. Tiffany—I want to get me some spats.
Mr. Tiffany—Get 'em, then; but it's carrying coals to Newcastle!—Judge.

DIFFERENTIATION.

Mrs. Naggs—Why are you so indifferent to me since we are married?
Naggs—I'm not indifferent; you're different.

AT THE THEATER.

"I wish I was a German submarine."
"Why?"
"I'd torpedo that headliner."

SERIOUS OUTLOOK.

"I read somewhere there might be a button famine."
"That would be something for us to press for relief."

EQUALIZING THE BURDEN.

"Posterity will have to pay these immense war debts."
"That's fair. Posterity's shirking all the fighting, ain't it?"
